Mastering the Technology of Participation®

“This program is a winner. It challenges you to step up, but it delivers so much the reward is worth every ounce of effort.”

M.P., Human Resources Manager, Financial Service Provider

“It’s one of a kind! The program is designed for the busy executive who knows the value of improving their professional skills but doesn’t have the luxury of going to class several nights a week, AND I could practice my skills in my everyday work. Doesn’t get any better than that!”

D.L., Executive Director, Community Development Agency

Mastering the Technology of Participation® (MToP®) is a year-long program that provides 12 days of professional training in three-day increments each quarter, along with opportunities for mentoring, independent study and real-world practice.

You will train and co-train with an intimate group of other facilitators led by experienced Technology of Participation® (ToP®) trainers. At the end of your course year, you will be transformed in your capacities as a facilitator and facilitative leader, and may even be ready for certification.

If you benefited from Group Facilitation Methods and other ToP® methodologies, Mastering the Technology of Participation® promises to deepen and increase your ease and enjoyment of using these methods with groups while it brings you new tools, processes and capabilities.
