Former Allegheny County Executive James C. Roddey Joins McCrorry & McDowell LLC

Pittsburgh, PA, September 8, 2008 – McCrorry & McDowell LLC is pleased to announce that former Allegheny County Chief Executive James C. Roddey has joined the firm as a Senior Consultant. Mr. Roddey begins a new chapter in a career marked by business, civic, and political leadership.

“Jim’s leadership skills and track record of success in business, as well as nonprofit and public service, makes him an ideal match for McCrorry & McDowell’s clients,” said Mike McDowell, Managing Principal of McCrorry & McDowell LLC. “We see many opportunities to utilize his talents and know that he will be a significant asset to our organization both in our business consulting practice and in our Dewey & Kaye nonprofit division.”

“I have a great deal of respect and admiration for what McCrorry & McDowell has accomplished both in business and in the community,” said Roddey. “I am looking forward to this opportunity to use my experience to contribute to the growth of both businesses and nonprofits throughout the region.”

Roddey is President of RiverQuest, serves on the boards of The Pittsburgh Foundation and Sarah Scaife Foundation, as well as five other nonprofit boards, and is an Emeritus Trustee of the University of Pittsburgh. He is a director of several corporations and is past president or chairman of ten businesses and a past board member of more than 30 nonprofit boards, 12 of which he chaired.

He maintains an active speaking schedule appearing often as a keynote speaker, an auctioneer or master of ceremonies.
